

ABSTRACT

Deuterium Depleted Water is administered to tested animals before and after tumoral grafting with animal grafts in certain concentrations over a period of time, viability is determined for the tumor cells to be grafted, grafting of the animals in the experimental group and the control animals is conducted, continuously and long-term administering, by diet, of Deuterium Depleted Water, in certain concentrations is performed, and determination is made of efficient concentration of Deuterium Depleted Water for tested surviving animals depending on certain characteristics.